Mitchell Has Done Well.

President of Indiana Operators

Says the Miners' President Deserves Success.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 7.—J. Smith Talley, president of the Indiana Coal Operators' association and the largest president in the state, says:
"From the start, the Pennsylvania operators have been in the wrong and making mistakes. The first mistake was in not accepting Mitchell's offer to continue work while the differences between miners and operators were being settled by arbitration. Mr. Mitchell has been conservative throughout the controversy, though firmness has been characteristic of his leadership. His fairness was shown in offering to submit the controversy to arbitration and to accept either the president or those named by him as arbitrators. I have known John Mitchell ten years and his conduct has been no more than those who know him intimately expected of him. He deserves ultimate success and I believe he will have it."

Mr. Talley says that each year it is easier for the operators' organization of the states in the interstate agreement to reach a settlement with the miners' organization. Both sides come together determined to fight out their differences and sign a yearly contract. A good deal of time is consumed in these conferences in what is much like an angry quarrel, but that is the way they get rid of differences and finally come to terms.

OFFERS

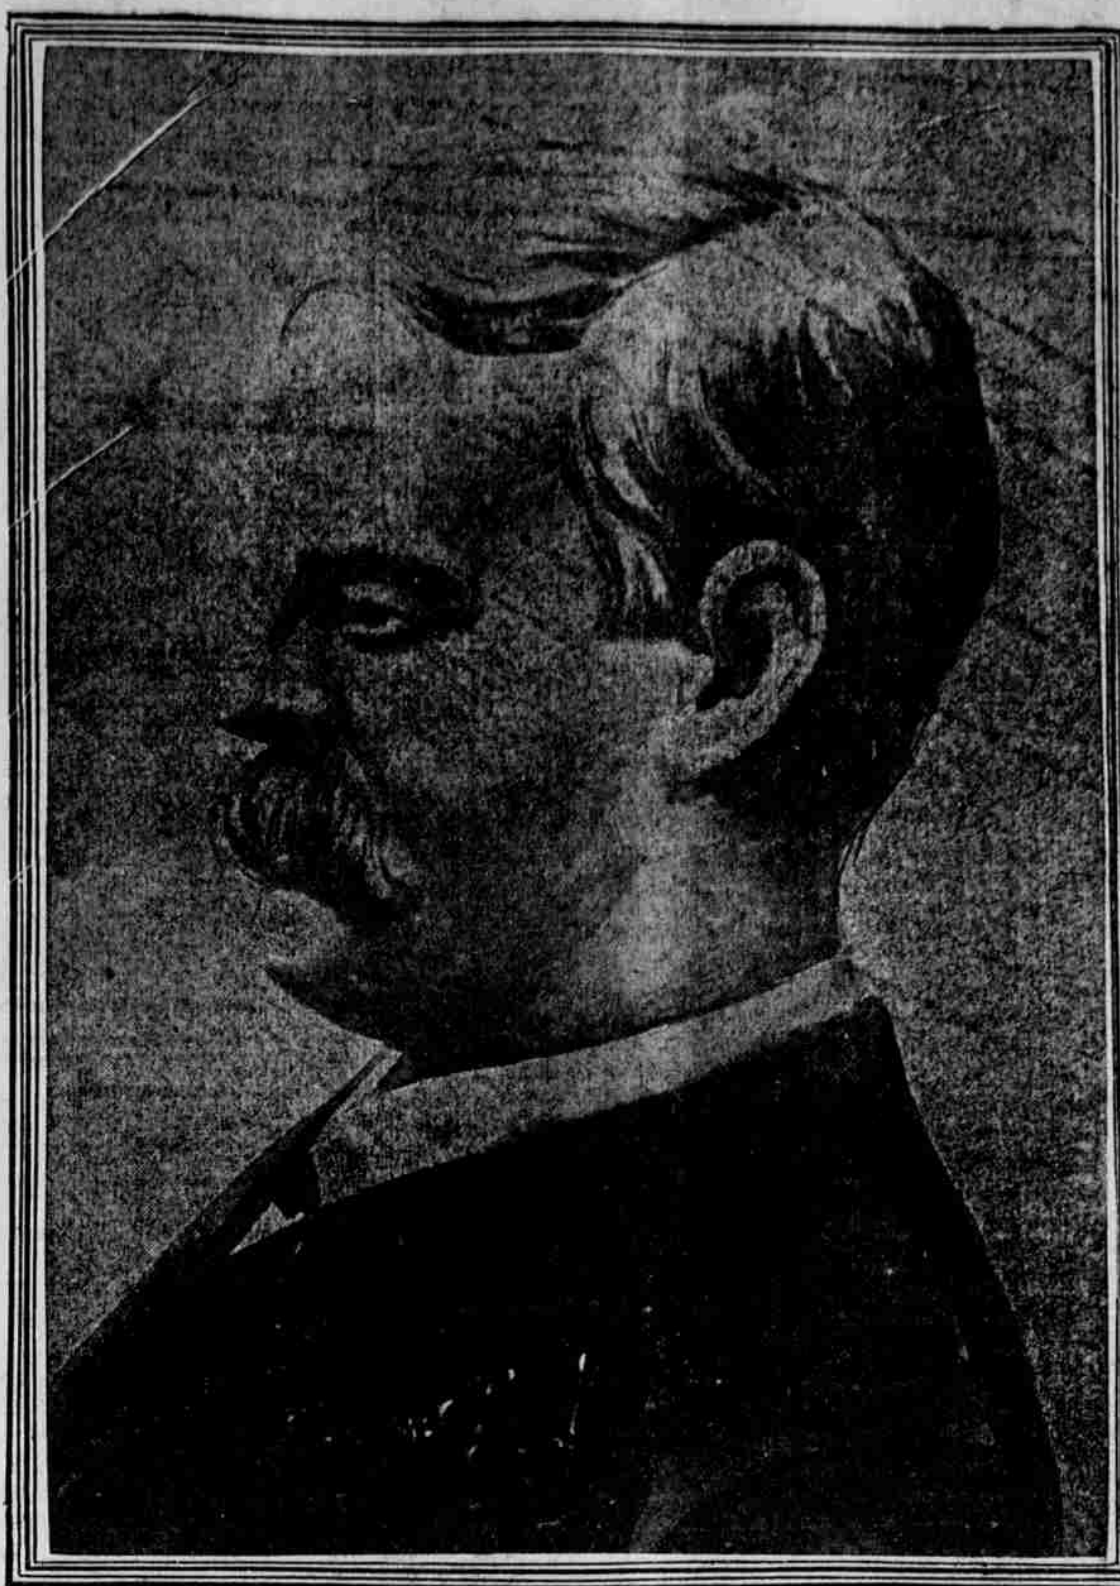

Of Aid For the People

United States Asked to Take Charge of Mines.

New York, Oct. 7.—Following the failure of the coal conference in Washington last Friday two letters have been sent to President Roosevelt, offering to allow the United States government to mine coal to relieve a possible coal famine. Charles Barry, president of a company which he says owns many thousands of acres of coal fields in Jackson county, Ky., offers to permit the working of the fields by the Pennsylvania strikers on a union basis under government supervision and suggests that an extra session of Congress be called to make an appropriation to transfer and house the miners and begin mining operations.

Mrs. Johanna C. Samuels, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., and Washington, but who has been in New York, for several months, says that she is the individual owner of coal lands in Kentucky, convenient to two railroads. She offers to contribute coal free, if the government will pay the miners and carriers.

HEARTY

Laughter at "The Missouri Girl."

"York State Folks" Tomorrow Afternoon and Night.

The audience at the Grand opera house laughed long and heartily Monday evening. The cause of the laughter was "The Missouri Girl," as put on by Fred Raymond as Zeke Dobson and Sadie Raymond as Daisy. The scenes of the play are in Missouri. The play has a good plot and ludicrous situations run through the entire performance and cause many a hearty laugh. Perhaps the climax of the ludicrous situations is reached in the third act, when Zeke and Daisy, typical Missouri country people, visit the fine mansion of a wealthy relative in Chicago. The star of the company is Fred Raymond. His rendition of Zeke Dobson, a lanky Missouri youth from the rural regions, is superb. Fred Raymond disappears and the audience sees and laughs at the quaint Zeke Dobson. Sadie Raymond as Daisy was clever. Ed. Thompson played the role of Silas Grubb in a pleasing manner while Lizzie Chester as Mrs. Grubb was strong both in voice and in her rendition of the part. Edwin Elliott appeared well as Sandy Ragsdale, a tramp. His role would be bettered if he would omit the song which he attempts to sing in the second act.

Gordon Grey appears as Phil Sweetman, a bad son. The other members of the company are good and the large audience was well pleased as was shown by the liberal applause that was bestowed upon the play.

It will be given again this afternoon and evening and Wednesday afternoon and evening.

One of the marked dramatic successes of last as well as the present season, "York State Folks," comes to the Colonial theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening. Among the favorites who will be seen again are James Lackaye, as the self-willed Simon Peter; Ray L. Royce as Myron Cooper, the lovable old organist; Ernest Lamson, as the gawky young horse trader; Lem Dunbar, Harry Jackson as the sleepy workman in the ing a firm stand as a melodrama without evasion. Its posters prepare one for most tremendous sensations, such as the bicycle ride for life in the storm and the sensational gallop for the tollgate. At the same time there is an element of rural simplicity which places it in high favor. Joseph Arthur's types of character are as quaint as those in "Blue Jeans," but "Lost River" far surpasses it in the less sensational scenes, where tender love and homely sayings are mingled with typical Hoosier wisdom and humor. This play will be the attraction at the Colonial theatre on Thursday evening. Seats are now on sale.

Those who did not see "Our New Minister" when it was presented here for the first time last season, should pay a visit to the Colonial and find out something about the lives of our New England country cousins. Those who have enjoyed this Yankee play will need no urging to cause them to wend their steps toward the Colonial theatre next Friday night for this engagement. All the favorites of last year's cast are retained for this season, and a complete new scenic production is carried.

"The Power of the Cross" is the title of the play which is to come to the Colonial theatre on Saturday night. It is described as a sensational melo-

ART WORKS GIVEN AWAY.

The Pittsburgh Sunday Gazette Will Distribute Beautiful Pastels Free to Subscribers.

About 10 days ago there was placed on sale and extensively advertised by one of the leading art stores of Pittsburgh a new series of pictures by the well-known artist, Oscar Holliday Banghart. The series comprises 12 pastel effects in beautifully delicate and artistic tints. The price for each, as sold in the art store, is $1.50. The beauty of the works of art cannot be described. They are mainly sketches of American society types, and neither the Gibson nor the Christy girls surpass these of Banghart in striking originality or in truth to the type character. The finest kind of half-tone reproduction would fail to do justice to the delicacy of the tints. To appreciate the sketches one must see them.

There is one way for you to obtain free the complete series. These pastels sell at $1.50 each, but at an enormous cost an arrangement has been effected by which every purchaser of The Pittsburgh Sunday Gazette, beginning with the issue of October 12, is to receive one of these pictures free with the paper. There have been art supplements before with The Gazette that were well worth framing, but no Sunday paper in the world has ever before made such an offer to its subscribers. This series will be an ornament to the library, drawing room, boudoir or "den" in any home in the land, and no more interesting series for a portfolio, to be ready for looking over at any time, could be had. The most surprising fact is that the series can be had absolutely free. Such opportunities are rare, and The Sunday Gazette alone makes the offer. The cost would stagger a less progressive publication, and when the other expensive features of The Gazette are taken into consideration, it will be admitted by any one familiar with such matters that so much for so little money is not to be found elsewhere. Again we say, "Watch the Old Lady Grow Young."

It is easily seen that the demand for The Gazette with the pictures will be phenomenal. Place your order with the local agent at once. It will be difficult to secure the paper and supplement later.

woodshop; the two clever children, and all the others of the original cast. The demand for seats in advance indicates the interest in this engagement, especially for the matinee which is given by special request of a large number of admirers of this beautiful play. The matinee will begin promptly at 2:15 p. m.

drama in four acts, and has been spoken of as being one of the greatest plays ever written around life in the great city of New York. The scenic accessories include stage pictures depicting the beautiful country home of the Rev. David Adams, in Sullivan county, New York, the Good Samaritan Mission on the Bowery, Long Acre Square, in the heart of the white light district.

A beautiful story of the southland, "Old Arkansaw," will be the attraction the Grand the last half of this week. This play was written by Fred Raymond, author of "The Missouri Girl," etc. In addition to an interesting plot and plenty of comedy, the scenic embellishments help to make up an evening of amusement. A quantity of wonderfully constructed scenic devices, together with an electrical fountain, have certainly pointed out to theatre goers that there is something new under the sun.

RICH ORES

In Unlimited Quantities Said To Be In India.

New York, Oct. 7.—Among the passengers on La Champagne, which arrived yesterday, was N. Tata, a retired Parsee merchant.

"India has unlimited fields of rich ores," said Mr. Tata, "and the great obstacle in the way of developing these resources has been the lack of proper fuel for smelting and reduction purposes."

"I bring letters of introduction to J. Pierpont Morgan and other financiers, and hope to interest them in our products."
